

Paphos Trip Report 10-24th April 2013

By Bob Shiret

Cyprus Warbler

Introduction

This trip was our first to Cyprus when full migration was underway, this made a huge difference to the number of birds seen. Our 14 night holiday was booked through Thomsons and cost around £1000 each including half board and transfers. The hotel was the Pioneer Beach and I can comfortably say that this is the best hotel we have ever stayed in - bar none, food, staff and attention to detail was excellent. Weather on the trip was mainly in the 70 - 75 °f range with heavy rain on two days. We hired a car through the hotel for 7 days at around £350, interestingly a month earlier and this would have been almost halved. Arthur Stagg's "Birdwatching In Cyprus" book was used as a guide but is a bit out of date (15 years). I have split the report into areas visited and included time/distance from Paphos. All bird numbers given are for the most seen at a location on one visit.

Geriskipou Beach River

This location was 40 minutes walk/5 minutes by car from our hotel towards the airport, found by accident whilst looking for the E4 hiking path. The most accessible side of the river was on the airport side, but after heavy rain it was not possible to cross the river mouth on foot. Surprisingly this was one of the most productive areas of our holiday, with a wide variety of birds seen including :- Flyover Marsh Harrier, one Steppe Buzzard, ten Squacco Herons, two Night Herons six Purple Herons, twenty Little Egrets, Wood Sandpiper, Green Sandpiper, Common Sandpiper, Moorhen, six Little Crakes and a Black-eared Wheatear.

Squacco Heron

Wood Sandpiper

Little Crake

Black-eared Wheatear

Anarita Park

To reach this rolling grassland area from Paphos (15 minutes) take the B6 road and after a few miles turn left on the road to Agia Vavara (E606), pass the village and a Chicken farm and take a track on the right. This location was visited on just one day, our last, but was truly exceptional for raptors including fifty Red-footed Falcons using telegraphs wires to feed on the extensive large insect supply in the long grass. Also seen were at least six different Harriers, three each of Hen and Montagu's, interestingly two of these were watched at length feeding on large ground insects. Roller and Cyprus Warbler were seen and Bonelli's Eagle and Pallid Harrier were seen by others.

Red-footed Falcon

Montagu`s Harrier

Hen Harrier

Phassouri Reedbeds

This location on the Akrotiri Peninsular is 45 minutes from Paphos and here we saw:- twenty Glossy Ibis, six Cattle Egrets, four Ruff, Marsh Harrier, Hobby, ten Red Footed Falcons and twenty Night Herons in flight.

Cattle Egret

Ruff

Glossy Ibis

Paphos Harbour

A Squacco Heron and Spur-winged Plover were on the rocks by our hotel, twenty migrating Little Egrets rested on the rocks, twelve Black Winged Stilts were seen migrating at low level over the sea. Several Common Sandpipers and a Kingfisher were regular, thirty eight Glossy Ibis were seen inland migrating at high level. A Black Francolin was heard from our hotel room and almost every other location.

Spur-winged Plover

Squacco Heron

Black-winged Stilts

Coral Bay

We caught the bus to Coral Bay (30 minutes) and saw several Sardinian and Fan-tailed Warblers and both were abundant in many locations. Perhaps the most impressive sight of the whole trip was a flock of sixty Purple Herons migrating out to sea, next day a smaller flock of thirty was seen. Six Short-toed Larks were seen along with two Linnets.

Purple Herons

Short-toed Lark

Aspro Dam

This site is about 10 minutes on the B6 out of Paphos and signposted on the left. A flock of six Night Herons plus one juvenile bird was seen along with six Alpine Swifts and an Ortolan Bunting. At the "shallow end" two Rollers were seen.

Night Herons

Juvenile Night Heron

Roller

Other Locations

The Curium Archaeological site had a Tawny Pipit, the road behind Kensington Cliffs had three flyover Griffon Vultures and Akrotiri Gravel Pits had a Long-legged Buzzard, Hoopoe, two Whinchat, six Stone Curlews and two Red-footed Falcons. Two Great Spotted Cuckoos, Black Kite and Marsh Harrier were at Evretou Dam along with over a hundred Spanish Sparrows. Paphos Lighthouse area turned up several Yellow Wagtails species, Merlin, Woodchat and Lesser Grey Shrikes (both found by others). The hills at Petra tou Romiou (Aphodite's Rock) held two Cyprus Warblers and a juvenile Black-eared Wheatear.

Tawny Pipit

Great Spotted Cuckoos

Cyprus Warbler

Juvenile Black-eared Wheatear

Griffon Vulture

Butterflies

Pictured below are some of the butterflies seen on the trip:-

Long-tailed Blue

Lesser Fiery Copper

Lulworth Skipper

Paphos Blue

Millet Skipper

Summary

On an expertly guided trip many more birds than mentioned above would have been seen, but as ours was predominantly a walking holiday we were more than happy with the holiday and Paphos was the ideal centre to access a large number of locations. Many thanks to Mike King (The Gloster Birder) and Colin Richardson for their ID help.